Unfinished Business

No unfinished business.

New Business

No new business.

Good of the Order

Beau reported that if you’re an attendee and want to help out without joining staff, talk to Tristan with the volunteer department. Can help out just a little bit, or while you’re bored at the convention. Michael added that if you want to volunteer and show off your costume, Maid Squad is a good place. Tristan added that most of Maid Squad was volunteers last year. Brandon said that the Get Involved forum section has a thread with Maid Squad details and requirements.

Ally showed a new merchandise item, Kumoricon umbrellas. Have about 170 to sell at convention. Limited, but amazing and beautiful. Price will be around $25 or $20, and it will be available at the merchandise booth. The merchandise booth is outside of the Exhibitors Hall. Undecided if will sell outside convention.

Stacie and Jasmine reported that they are working on an AR game for Kumoricon played on your phone called KumoriQuest. It is part of a class project. It is designed to help find places to eat in downtown Vancouver, and will be running throughout the con. The game has a story and places various cosplayers as “NPCs” in the blocks around downtown. It is hosted as a Tumblr blog, which is currently sort of a developers’ blog. The game is built on the ARIS platform, is free, and only works on GPS-enabled iOS devices. However, the game can be played with a group so not every player needs a device. Ally added that members of Promo-Force can contribute to this game as part of their staff duties to meet their requirements. Attendees can participate, too.

A meeting participant asked about a webcam at a meeting for remote participation. Jeff answered that it's something we've looked into, but is a lower priority due to the need for setup and Internet access at each meeting, finding a method for a remote person to obtain the floor, and because minutes and recordings for staff are published after the meeting.

Michael announced that those looking to share hotel rooms can meet during breakouts. Also, he asked about detergent or soap sponsorships for bags. Beau stated that it is difficult due to allergy risks.

Rant and Rave

A meeting participant asked what power we have to not be in Vancouver in 2013. Beau stated that there are very few available hotels that can accommodate our size. Ally stated that transportation is not as bad as it seems, and we will be posting a video showing how to use TriMet.

Megean suggested unscented soap to avoid fragrance allergies. She also offered to Ally to provide information on the best ways to use TriMet to get to Vancouver.

Beau reported that Oxfest will be in the park on Monday again, and that he is talking to their organizer to establish more communication and try to have both our events peacefully co-exist in the area. Jaz added a suggestion that we in costumes may still appear to be the "freaks" to them, and not escalate any issues and just laugh about it if they arise.

Adjournment

The meeting was adjourned at 2:08pm by Beau.

Respectfully submitted,

Jeff Tyrrell, Secretary
